Respect Tradition

Inspired by the rich heritage of the Brigade de Cuisine

At Chefs Brigade, every design we develop, each garment we craft and every aspect of our business has been founded upon respecting the long standing traditions of the Brigade de Cuisine. Using the best possible ingredients, our team comes together to craft well considered, innovative chef and hospitality apparel.

Whilst we believe in paying homage to the past we have the desire, vision and ability to take the Chefs Apparel industry into the future, creating the best products for our clients and their environments today. The approach we take towards product design demonstrates a bias for simplicity, function and utility - with you, our customer, at the forefront of our decisions.

Chefs Brigade is a family run business and our values are reflective of this. We believe in forging relationships through mutual respect and co-existence, amongst ourselves and within the communities and spaces in which we work. We work to ensure that our customers know that they can absolutely and unconditionally trust the Chefs Brigade name, and the products we offer.

Each and every garment within our range has a distinctive personality that is reflected in its design. Each and every one of these garments has a specific name that echoes the style's character traits.

Although seemingly random, these names have been inspired by iconic restaurants, hotels, and even bars from all around the world. This is our way of paying homage to some of the industries top institutions and Chefs therein. Ultimately, our little nod of respect to the traditions and history crafted out by the Brigade de Cuisine.

The boldest thing one can do with tradition is dare to change it.

A tribute to the rebels, free-thinkers and trailblazers while reminding its wearer to go forth, upholding their spirit, and pave new ways of their own. A symbol to unify, through uniform, those unafraid to go against the grain and trust, above all else, their intuition, talents, and taste.

You see, within my own life, I am remembered not for my skills but for what I dared to do with them. For the moments I let inspiration and instinct override my orders, fears, and training and I dared to take a leap of faith in the name of creating, as I would a dish, something new - something out of the ordinary.

We set out to create a jacket that would remind chefs that nobody is born a Maverick but rather becomes one through their own agency. The makers of history are not those who preserve it but those brave enough to redirect it, stoking in them a fire many feel but few are bold enough to embrace. A tenacity of spirit that is brave enough to be called 'outrageous', 'reckless', and 'insane', long before it is called 'genius'.

In this spirit, we created something that would pay tribute to this fire - a garment which reminds its wearer that the boldest thing one can do with tradition is dare to change it. We see this as our message of encouragement for the soon-to-be game-changers and history-makers of the culinary world and something to wear while doing so.

THE MAVERICK

With sophistication and ease-of-use at the cornerstone of this all-rounder's design, The Maverick empowers chefs to pioneer new ways and create stories of their own. It's only a bonus that they get to look effortlessly stylish and feel comfortable while doing so.

To good company and even better amigos!

There is an unspoken understanding amongst chefs. The happy ones, at least. We work as we play: together. From working like clockwork in the kitchen, to the rowdy nights somehow barely yet forever remembered, a chef is best when they are one of many. You see, in a chef's career, hard work is a given. If I have learned anything in my career, it is that hard work is rarely fulfilling work when it is hard work alone.

From my humble beginnings to the pinnacle of my career, I have honed the most important skill of all. To work as I relax- with presence, with flair, and with others. It was a way of work and life I didn't think much of as a young chef. At least not until that fateful day in Cozumel when my colleagues and I stumbled into The Three Amigos Cantina, a haven tucked into Mexico's golden stretch of the Caribbean.

It was there we forged what was already a kinship in the kitchen to friendships that would last to this day even though we have since scattered across the seven seas. I learned that day that shared work is like shared food in that it brings people together. It's why it's not only the name of that cantina that lives on through our Amigo coat but its message.

Though it is solo dedication that sees us develop our skills and careers as individuals, a chef's journey (much like good food) is best when shared. That is the spirit of our Amigo coat. A coat we created for chef's who passionately work and play side-by-side, echoing this balance by perfectly merging a sophisticated finish with perk-rich practicality.

THE AMIGO

It is with great pride and the best of memories that I created The Amigo. A coat for the chef who works as they play: with passion, towards greatness, and in good company.

- Designed with durability in mind, our token 150 GSM lightweight Polycotton Twill boasts breathability and longevity,
- Dynamic and stylish, the Amigo's back is stepped and thus lower than the front,
- Enjoy ease of movement thanks to side seam slits at the hem,
- The tapered collar, front yoke panel and concealed ring stud fasteners come together to create a sleek, modern aesthetic,
- Secure your Bib Apron with a discreet back-of-neck apron clip for a clean, polished look,
- An easily accessible thermometer/ pen pocket on the sleeve adds convenience to your work environment.

Tradition re-imagined - with an element of surprise

Hong Kong was best experienced in its back streets. On rare nights off, I'd dissolve into its dimly-lit alleyways, exploring and tasting the city in its greatest authenticity. It was there, as a hot and steamy Saturday night simmered into morning, that I saw my final stop for the evening. Tucked, as though shy, into an alley, I let the ticking blinks of neon lights draw me inside.

I walked in, braced for cheap drinks and all the makings of a good dive bar, only to find a piece of home. It was old America in its neon-lit, jukebox-blaring glory. A bit of tradition in the most unlikely of places. What was meant to be one last drink before bed became a world class unfolding of service, atmosphere, and spirit, not to mention one of the best cocktails I've ever had (The Hobnail).

It was no surprise to later find out that what I'd accidentally stumbled upon was a bar of renowned status, one of the world's best, in fact. No wonder it inspired a chef's coat of the same name and spirit years later. The Pontiac, though timeless in many ways, re-imagines tradition by adding an element of the unexpected.

When one is open and adventurous they find that inspiration is most potent when it is unexpected. The Pontiac, both the bar and chef's coat, are for those open to being surprised. Not just by unlikely inspiration - but with what one can do with it.

THE PONTIAC

The Pontiac is a classic short-sleeve chef coat at heart, but with an edgy and unexpected personality of its own. The style you never knew you just needed to have.

- The  $\frac{3}{4}$  back performance Birdseye Mesh adds breathability and ventilation to help keep you cool,
- A V-cut sleeve hem adds style and modernity,
- Polished off with double-needling top-stitching on seams for added strength and re-enforcement,
- Stud buttons ensure a professional, easy-to-assemble look,
- Secure your apron with a trusty back-of-neck clip for added convenience and comfort,
- An easily-accessible thermometer/ pen pocket on the sleeve adds ease to your work environment,
- Designed to last, the 150 GSM lightweight Polycotton Twill is both breathable and durable.

How a right of passage inspired a Chefs Brigade classic

As a seasoned chef, I am often asked about my schooling. For this I have two answers. There's the polite one; two years in the North of France, lessons by day and many nights of cheap booze.

And then there's the truth.

The truth that I never finished my schooling, in that a good chef is always learning. Every dish, every kitchen, every little old lady sharing passed-down, secret family recipes- each a lesson reminding me to remain open and curious.

While I cannot tell people when I truly became a chef, I can tell people when I first looked like one. I left that infamous school in France the same way I started; wearing my very first chef's coat, The Imperial, and no less a student than the day I first arrived.

After years of many coats and even more lessons, I finally understand how my first chef jacket earned its name. The Imperial, meaning that of an empire and the proud history behind it, did not imply my arrival at greatness but an ever growing commitment to building upon it.

THE IMPERIAL

Merging thoughtful design with a timeless aesthetic, The Imperial is a no-frills Chefs Brigade classic. As it is with historic empires, greatness isn't built in a day. Which is why we've kitted out The Imperial with perks and details that add ease and comfort to the years of hard work it takes to build a legacy.

- A double-breasted, reversible front closure for an instant professional look and easy neatening,
- Rolled up, or worn long, the chic French cuffs are a touch of thoughtful design adding style,
- Secure your apron with a discreet neck clip for an easily put together and professional finish,
- A sleeve pocket for your thermometer or trusty pen- a timeless addition that oozes practicality and usefulness.
- Designed to last, the 150 GSM lightweight Polycotton Twill is both breathable and durable.

From inspiration to grandeur

Manhattan, 1998. I was working in a kitchen more back alley than fine dining when a server caught wind of a party. Though exclusive, she had an in. We thrived that way back then, through connections. We still do. I followed along, not expecting much past a dance and the last of the free champagne. I had no idea I'd be so awestruck by the hotel's grandeur. Least of all, to quietly note its formula.

You see, I understood at that moment that a great chef is much like a great hotel. In that, true innovation works with tradition and that sophistication endures when it welcomes a little edge. I promised myself I would only revisit when I had perfected that formula.

It was neither time nor accolades that saw me ready to return, but a coat. The Grand Executive coat. It was only when I'd earned this coat that I could once again visit The Grand Soho and stand in that same grandeur, a chef of the same cloth.

Distinctive, timeless, and brimming with style, it's no surprise our Grand Executive Chefs Coat is such a crowd-pleaser. The lightweight composition combines breathable cotton and sturdy, wrinkle-resistant polyester to ensure a wear as comfortable as it is aesthetically pleasing.

THE GRAND

We created our Grand Executive Coat for the chef who never let inspiration be inspiration alone but rather a channel into the hard work, tenacity, and boundary-pushing that sees a good chef become a great one.

- Keep it neat and professional with a discreet back-of-neck apron clip,
- Things heating up? No problem! The Grand has a nifty thermometer/ pen pocket on the sleeve for quick, convenient access,
- We've added a French cuff because, come amateur or master, a good chef is never afraid to roll up their sleeves,
- Designed with both practicality and style in mind, we've incorporated concealed ring stud fasteners for a sleek, professional finish.
- Designed to last, the 150 GSM lightweight Polycotton Twill is both breathable and durable.

A love letter to a bygone era

We can look to great eras not only for inspiration but as a compass for excellence. For this reason, I tell budding chefs to fill their shelves with two kinds of books: recipe books for what they wish to learn and history books for who they wish to become.

Consider the 1920s, a personal favourite of mine, and one that came alive for me in the most unexpected time and place. Across the globe and a century later, I found its spirit lingering in The Atlas, Singapore's bar and love letter to the bygone era. It was there I experienced the decade's mastery of nuance.

It wasn't just the jazz, the lavish lifestyles, or the social changes that defined the Twenties but its focus on small yet transformative details. The intricate beading of a flapper's dress, the twist of a speak-easy cocktail garnish, and the striking lines of Art Deco motifs - each element, no matter its size, played a pivotal role in crafting the era's iconic style. A style, both subtle and profound, that still dazzles and inspires today.

And so, I encourage my fellow chefs to change it up and think small. While hard work and tenacity are essential, it is the bold, deliberate choices we make that transform our dishes into signature masterpieces and hard work into a meaningful career. The kind of career that'll not only feature your work in cookbooks but also etch your story in history.

THE ATLAS

Inspired by the lines of Art Deco design, The Atlas chef coat pays tribute to the significance of the little things- the small yet transformative details that turn dishes into artistry and hard work into remarkable careers.

- A single breasted design elevated with cloth covered white buttons,
- An easily-accessible thermometer/ pen pocket on the sleeve adds ease to your work environment,
- Maintain a professional look with a back-of-neck apron clip to secure your Bib Apron,
- Back performance Birdseye Mesh adds breathability and ventilation to help you keep your cool,
- The V-cut sleeve-hem detail adds a touch of class and modernity,
- Crafted from lightweight, premium 150 GSM Polycotton Twill boasting both breathability and durability.

Be more than just a chef - be the chef

Why be a chef when you can be the chef? Miami taught me that. Well, that and how it's called Vice City by no mistake. From mohawked-has been rockstars and their strange food requests, celebrities unravelling atop tabletops come midday bottomless mojitos, and an endless barrage of designer lapdogs in their fluffy collared glory- Miami's hotel Delano was a Summer for the books.

It was the kind of work that felt like play- a highly coveted phenomena in the culinary world- and one in which my creations saw me outside of the kitchen as much as I was inside of it. You see when you're creating for some of the world's most discerning palettes, you need to have the skills. When those palettes are then pleased and you're called out to the table to be shown gratitude through drink and festivity, however, you need to look the part.

Much like the Delano itself, I came to be my own institution. Though gleaming in my crisp white uniform and committed to service, it was what happened inside that saw the conversion of ordinary to extraordinary. A spirit, if you will. Something hedonistic and unspoken that bonded I, the chef who created, and them, the mouths that enjoyed...

It's no wonder the hotel Delano came to later inspire a Chefs Brigade classic of the same name. In both design and message, The Delano is not just a jacket but a badge of honour. Not just a uniform, but representation of the work and creativity it had a hand in creating. A reminder that a chef has much to do with skills as it does with confidence and that looking the part is a sure way to feel the part too. Dare I say, even own it.

THE DELANO

With its performance-enhancing design considerations and on-trend modern look, The Delano puts you in the driver's seat.

- Enjoy out-of-sight reinforcements with concealed button studs,
- An easily-accessible thermometer/ pen pocket on the sleeve adds ease of flow to your work environment,
- A wrap over collar works with contrast inner and snap stud closures for a discreet, secured finish,
- Keep your cool when things are heating up thanks to The Delano's 150 GSM lightweight Polycotton Twill,
- Double-needle stitching adds polish and finesse to an already-timeless Raglan sleeve,
- Piping on the front and thermometer pocket adds a pop of contrast,
- Rolled-back French cuffs add a modern look and feel.

In pursuit of culinary excellence

Where discretion meets mastery

While a secret life of honed skills, simmering suspense, and hidden societies might sound like the plot of an action film, the life of a chef is precisely that: a gripping saga of action and mystery.

It's no wonder the John Wick films resonate with me. With a touch of humour and pride, I see my life's work echoed in the films' secret underworld, The Continental. A seemingly ordinary hotel that, behind closed doors, operates as a hidden sanctuary for those seeking skills and discretion. A world much like the one in which I quietly honed my own craft, far from the spotlight and glory.

In its essence, The Continental is as much a place as it is an attitude; a secret understanding that true mastery unfolds in the shadows. Through unwavering dedication and curiosity, we are inducted into this hidden network. A world filled with late-night endeavours, shared secrets, and skills refined with the precision of a well-honed blade.

I encourage young chefs to embody this refuge within themselves and embrace the unseen trials and triumphs of the unknown. While the spotlight may beckon with promises of glory, it's in the shadows where true legacies are forged.

THE CONTINENTAL

Combining performance enhancing design with modern aesthetics, The Continental empowers its wearer to forge their own gripping sagas enriched with action and mystery.

- A sleek, modern mandarin wrap collar for a contemporary look,
- Side mesh insert panels that optimise air flow and ventilation,
- Concealed front metal stud closures for a polished, professional aesthetic,
- Ease of movement enhanced by side slit hem,
- The welt chest pocket combines function and convenience stylishly so,
- Tailored turn back French cuffs,
- Improved longevity thanks to the coat's highly durable, premium 150 GSM lightweight Polycotton Twill further strengthened by double needle top-stitching.

From inspiration to grandeur

To step into my office is to step into a tapestry of my worldly adventures. More of a museum than a workspace, my life's work lives on through the mementos, collected books, and faded photographs tucked into its every nook & corner. It's no wonder I chose to sit within its wealth of memories to prepare for my next adventure: a prestigious invitation to speak at the Grand Hotel Oslo. A great honour reserved only for the masters and maestros of our time.

Amongst my treasures, one item in particular always steals my attention: my first executive chefs coat. More than a uniform, the coat is a canvas upon which my story was told. To simply look at it is to be transported back to the kitchens that made me, the mentors that changed me, and the failures I now attribute some of my greatest lessons to.

At that moment, I realised the importance of preserving one's story. Better yet, the importance of celebrating it. That coat not only did both but spoke the universal language of gastronomy, melding art with science, tradition with innovation, and the personal with the professional. Suddenly, the speech no longer mattered. While I did not yet know what I would say, I knew exactly what I would be wearing. With the invitation at my desk and a chance to revel in our legacy calling, it seems my trusty coat and I stand, yet again, at the start of another adventure.

It's no secret a great chef is driven by their ability to turn inspiration into creation, and a collection of remarkable stories into an extraordinary career. We created The Oslo to join you on that adventure and in turn become a great story unto itself.

THE OSLO

Merging superior craftsmanship with versatility and comfort, The Oslo is a trusty companion for any chef looking to leave their mark on the culinary world.

- Look your best in the formal collared shirt design finished off with button-down metal snaps,

An appetite for adventure...

As a young chef, I always knew I would feed the world. I could have never guessed, now looking back, the appetite for adventure the world would stir in me.

Whereas most chefs carve out a career, the nomadic chef embarks on an odyssey. There was a span of time in my career when I worked as I lived - in epic exploration. Peaceful vineyards blurred into bustling city scapes as I moved through life's tapestries of cultures and cuisines. It didn't take long in any posting for me to hunger for the next chapter, eager to add to my growing collection of recipes, memories and passport stamps.

Though life moved a million miles a second, I stayed grounded through a few loyal companions. The first being my insatiable appetite to learn and explore and the other, my trusty pair of baggy chef pants.

While my passion sent me chasing new horizons, those pants grounded me in times when I moved and changed too quickly to lay down roots. They were functional beyond their obvious perks, providing the comfort of familiarity when I needed it most. They were not just a pair of pants but a companion enduring with me the heat of a thousand kitchens providing protection and comfort every step along the way.

It is not so much a career I look back on but an odyssey. My journey is the story about how it is a chef's own insatiable hunger that fuels their artistry, how the quest for adventure is a quest that never truly ends, and how a pair of humble chefs pants was all I needed to not only explore the world, but feel at home in it.

THE NOMAD

Marrying function and style, The Nomad is in it for the long haul, ready to weather the heat of the kitchen and provide a touch of the familiar when life is moving a million miles a second.

- Keep your cool while you turn up the heat in The Nomad's soft-handle, 210 GSM Polycotton blend- a heavyweight premium composition as durable as it is a delight to wear,
- To combat wear and tear, we've fortified critical stress points with reinforced stitching,
